

Are You Interested in Launching a Registered Apprenticeship Program?

We can help!

The Supply Chain Automation Workforce Hub (Hub) is a one-stop solution for recruiting and training skilled workers in supply chain automation and is powered by employers, education institutions, and workforce organizations. We help employers and education institutions develop customized training programs that diversify supply chain talent pipelines through Registered Apprenticeship Programs (RAPs).

As community colleges look for ways to serve the community, address their mission, and develop initiatives that support or grow revenue streams, RAPs can be a solution that can support economic recovery. A RAP is an industry-driven training model that emphasizes learning by doing.

Community colleges play a critical role in RAPs: they build and strengthen a pipeline of talent into RAPs and provide curriculum development and instructional support to RAP sponsors. Education institutions can operate the program themselves as a sponsor, or they can partner with another organization that is the sponsor.

The Hub can:

- ▶ Support national and/or state registration of RAPs
- ▶ Offer financial incentives to offset the cost of tuition and training of apprentices
- ▶ Provide technical assistance to RAP sponsors
- ▶ Assist with mentor training through train-the-trainer workshops
- ▶ Conduct education and outreach about the benefits of RAPs in supply chain automation
- ▶ Connect interested employers with education institutions and workforce organizations
- ▶ Support curriculum development to meet employers' training needs
- ▶ Support education institutions to offer applied learning aligned to in-demand careers and pathways to a college degree and/or certification
- ▶ Assist in outreach and marketing efforts to promote apprentice equity and diversity
- ▶ Identify state and federal funding opportunities

The Hub can help you develop and launch a RAP in supply chain automation; we provide numerous services and supports to education institutions.

RAP Benefits for Education Institutions
